‘Being fair and showing care’: the moral discourse of an English language teacher

Simon Williams
Aim

– To define moral discourse in the EAP classroom
– To suggest that EAP teachers routinely negotiate conflicting moral imperatives
– To claim that EAP teachers achieve renewed social integration
Outline

• Survey of moral activity in the classroom
• Research questions
• Data analysis, findings and implications
Task

• Turn to a stranger
• Share your worst teaching moment in the classroom – what happened? How did you resolve the situation? What could you have done differently?
Shelf mark LP 40000

- the neglected stack?
Morality in English language classroom discourse

- not values education
- not teacher education
UK Professional Standards for the Award of Qualified Teacher Status

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Scotland</th>
<th>Northern Ireland</th>
<th>Wales</th>
<th>England</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Moral and religious values</td>
<td>Moral purpose and responsibility</td>
<td>Professional values and practice</td>
<td>Positive values, attitudes and behaviour</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Effective Learning and Teaching in UK Higher Education, n.d.
Aristotelian moral virtues bravery, friendliness, generosity, honour, justice, magnanimity, magnificence, mildness, temperance, truthfulness, wit

(Aristotle, trans. 1985)

Fallona (2000) analysis of manner in 3 middle school teachers
The teacher-student relation

- Ethics
- Values
- Morals
- Attitudes
Teachers’ expression of moral values

- forms of address to learners and each other
- dress
- language
- choice of curricular content
- the learners they pay attention to
- manner of standing while talking with learners

(Pantic and Wubbels 2012: 451)
The teacher-student relation

justice
care
being fair vs being caring

‘at the core of teacher-student relations ... is a potential tension between two different moral orientations that are bound up with a teacher’s effort to treat students well’ (Katz 1999: 61)
Classroom interaction comprises the moral and the ethical via activity and exchanges (Campbell 2003: 27)

EAP teaching is characterised by a plethora of both Habermas: process of modernity

- the system, parasitic on
- the life world